A Tangled Web is a novel by L. M. Montgomery. It is one of the few books she published that was written mainly for adults. It centers on a community consisting of two families, the Darks and the Penhallows, who have lived in the same town for generations. The novel is set in a small town in Nova Scotia, Canada, and is a classic example of the "tangled web" genre, where the lives of two families become inextricably intertwined.
Modern web applications are built on a tangle of technologies that have been developed over time and then haphazardly pieced together. Every piece of the web is a puzzle, and it is the job of the web developer to solve the puzzle and make it work.
