

The Afghan Cane: A Granny Square Blanket in Polymer Clay

The Afghan Cane consists of sixteen polymer clay granny squares assembled in a grid, much like a crocheted afghan would be. Unlike the crocheted version, though, we don't have to create sixteen individual granny squares to make a colorful blanket. Through the magic of polymer color blends, we can generate a multitude of differently-colored squares with a single cane! REQUIRED SKILLS If you are comfortable with the Skinner blend technique and can reduce and re-assemble millefiori canes, you can do this project. TOOLS AND MATERIALS * 5 packages of clay (black, white, and three colors) * pasta machine * clay blade * optional cutters and extruder TOPICS COVERED Through this ebook you will learn: * How to choose colors that will look nice together and provide the necessary contrast * How to make a partial blend * Anatomy of a crocheted granny square * How to build a polymer cane that mimics the look of a granny square, and re-assemble it to create a 16-square afghan * Ideas for varying the look of the afghan through borders or different color choices This tutorial is fully-illustrated with step-by-step photos.
